OBJECT

To be the last player left after everyone else is SUNK!

THE CHALLENGE CARDS

There are twenty Challenge Cards included. Two of them are blank, so you can write your own special challenges. Take the two blanks from the deck and place them out-of-play. Use the printed Challenge Cards the first few times you play the game until you get the hang of SUNK. Once you're ready for a new challenge, use the blank cards and write your own challenges to add to the deck.

THE SPECIAL DIE

The symbols on the Special Die mean:

-  Place one drop of water in the Float Cup
-  Place two drops of water in the Float Cup
-  Place three drops of water in the Float Cup
-  Draw a Challenge Card and complete the challenge
-  Reverse play

SETUP

Fill the Sunk Tank halfway with water, and the Water Pitcher three-quarters of the way with water. Place the Sunk Tank in the center of the table and float the empty Float Cup in it. Remove the blank cards from the Challenge Card deck and set them aside. Place the Water Pitcher, Special Die and Challenge Cards (face-down) on the table beside the Sunk Tank.

HOW TO PLAY

- The oldest player goes first and rolls the die. When his turn is complete, play passes to the left (or to the right if a Reverse has been rolled).

1. If he rolls one, two, or three drops, he takes the water pitcher by the handle and using one hand only places one, two, or three drops of water in the Float Cup. Water must go into the Float Cup. If a player misses, he needs to keep pouring until the water goes into the Float Cup. Note: It will take a few turns for each player to get the hang of carefully pouring the water to get a small amount to drip out. An overly aggressive pour, resulting in more drops of water than required, is completely legal. However, this tactic can backfire and cause the Float Cup to sink during your turn. (You thought you were so tricky adding extra water to the cup in your attempt to sabotage your opponents, didn't you?) If that happens, you will be SUNK and out of the game.

If he rolls a C, he draws a Challenge Card and reads aloud the challenge. Challenge Cards add another element of difficulty to the game. A player needs to pour the amount of water listed on the Challenge Card while also successfully completing the challenge.

If he rolls an R, play reverses to the last player and the player rolling the R does nothing. The last player will then roll the die again and do as instructed by the die.

WHEN DOES A PLAYER'S TURN END?

Once a player has rolled the die and taken his turn, play passes to the left (or to the right if a Reverse has been rolled). When the next player picks up the die to roll, this officially signals the end of the previous player's turn. If the Float Cup sinks at any time during the previous player's turn or right afterwards (before the next player picks up the die to start his turn), the player who caused the Float Cup to sink is SUNK and is out of the game.

WHEN YOU'RE SUNK!

If you make the Float Cup sink during your turn, you are SUNK and are eliminated from the game.

A new round starts. Retrieve the Float Cup from the bottom of the Sunk Tank, empty the Float Cup out, and place it back (floating) on the water in the Sunk Tank.

END OF GAME AND WINNING THE GAME

The remaining players continue to play, until one-by-one, each one of them is SUNK! The last player standing (swimming, floating, what-have-you) is declared the SUNK Champion!

OTHER THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

- Good-natured ribbing, taunting, teasing and cajoling are all part of the game. Opponents can and will try everything to break a player's concentration and make him sink the Float Cup. Have fun and go with the flow!
- When the Float Cup begins to fill with water it will float around and wobble, making it unsteady. It is more difficult to get drops of water to hit the cup, which makes the game even more challenging.
